FOR NATIONAL SECURITY—

Women Marines Celebrate 8th Anniversary

BY COL. KATHERINE A. TOWLE, USMC
Director of Women Marines

ON 13 Feb. women Marines all over the nation will once more gather together, as they have for the past seven years, to celebrate the anniversary of the founding in 1943 of the wartime Marine Corps Women's Reserve. Many of these reunions will be attended this year not only by former or inactive reservists but also by many former women reservists turned "regular" and by other reservists who, since the early days of the Korean war, have again been serving the Marine Corps either as members of mobilized organized reserve units or as volunteers on extended active duty.

The success and achievement of World War II women in uniform, whatever their branch of service, is a matter of common knowledge. The passage by the Congress in 1948 of the "Women's Armed Services Integration Act," which provides for the inclusion of women in the regular components of the Armed Forces, is proof enough of their wartime effectiveness. Without their excellent record of accomplishment and conduct, the passage of such legislation would have been doubtful, to say the least.

Women in the Marine Corps were not an entire novelty in World War II since some 300 of them had served in a temporary enlisted status during the first World War, but the widespread use of 19,000 women, enlisted or commissioned in the Marine Corps Reserve, was certainly a new venture eight years ago, and one which many old-timers looked upon with trepidation and misgiving. Today, most of these "doubting-Thomases" are among the women Marines' staunchest supporters.

When, on 13 Feb. 1943, the Corps put out the call for 19,000 women to "Free a Man to Fight," the response was immediate. By June 1944, under the guidance and capable leadership of Col. Ruth Cheney Streeter, the wartime director, the Marine Corps Women's Reserve reached its full strength. Women reservists, or "WR's" as they soon were dubbed, came from all over the country to serve on all major continental Marine Corps posts and stations, and finally in Hawaii. From wherever they came and wherever they served, they were motivated and united by a single purpose:

Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, Jr., and General J. Lawton Collins, USA, Chief of Staff, went to Walter Reed Army Hospital this week to present the first Korean Service Ribbons to M/Sgt. Andy Partin, center, PFC. Francis Phillips, standing, and 1st Lt. Howard W. Cardoza, Jr., seated. The ribbon speedily will be made available to eligible men of all the Armed Forces.

AF Promotes 1,652 To Temp. Ranks

(Names Begin on Page 649)

The Air Force this week gave temporary promotions to 575 majors and 1,077 captains—all Regulars—who last year had been selected for permanent advancements and who, consequently, were declared ineligible to be considered for forthcoming temporary promotions.

The action came as no surprise, for there had been speculation for many weeks that measures would be taken to prevent these officers, successful in rigorous permanent selection proceedings, from being penalized unfairly.

The temporary advancements were made effective, with few exceptions, as of 19 Oct. 1950 for the 575 Regular majors promoted to lieutenant colonel and as of 14 Dec. 1950 for the 1,077 Regular captains promoted to major.

The JOURNAL issue of 21 Oct. contained the names of a total of 2,290 Regular majors selected for permanent promotion to lieutenant colonel. The Air Force said then that 674 of these officers would be given their higher permanent ranks almost immediately, although it was stated that actual changes of rank would go to only 148, since 490 already were serving in the temporary rank of lieutenant colonel or higher.

In the issue of 23 Dec. 1950 THE JOURNAL published the names of 3,794 permanent captains selected for advancement.

Decry Housing Shortage

Congressional debate regarding the utilization of the Lustron Corporation plant in Ohio has brought out new data concerning the deplorable housing situation for military personnel, which Representative Wayne L. Hays (D-Ohio) declares has sent morale to "a new low."

Addressing the House on 5 Feb. the Ohio Congressman submitted excerpts from investigations made late in 1950 which emphasize the need for more housing for families of men in service.

The contents of these excerpts, said Representative Hays, "are an unbelievably accurate portrayal of conditions which have no right to exist in this Nation today."

He noted that at Camp Pickett, Va., a personal investigation revealed that many substandard apartments are renting for $100 to $125 a month to military personnel.

Congressman Hays inserted the following excerpts from housing reports:

Scott AFB, Ill.—"We have 439 quarters and 2 trailer parks of 40 trailers for airmen and 20 trailers for officers. Of a population of approximately 14,000, some 4,000 are eligible for quarters. You will readily see that our capacity is limited and, therefore, the personnel who are not quartered at the base must find housing within a radius of 30 miles."

Castle AFB, Calif.—"The latest survey revealed 1,215 families were without housing or living in substandard housing."

George AFB, Calif.—"Of the 1,000 families represented by personnel stationed at this base, which require dependent accommodation."

Amendments to Pay Law Nearly Ready

An omnibus bill of amendments to the Career Compensation Act, which is expected to ask higher pay for junior officers of the Armed Forces, may be introduced in Congress by mid-March, Capitol Hill sources told THE JOURNAL this week.

It is known that the professional staff of the House Armed Services Committee, working directly under Representative Paul Kilday (D-Tex.) has been giving close study to military pay law and has been in conference with military authorities.

Late last year, it is recalled, Congressman Kilday declared that the implementation of the Career Compensation Act has resulted in decisions which do not reflect the intentions of Congress.

Congressman Kilday, who has been aided in his examination of Career Compensation Act inequities by letters from military personnel, sent at the suggestion of THE JOURNAL, likely will press for speedy Committee consideration of his bill. Since he is chairman of one of the Armed Services subcommittees, a measure sponsored by him is certain to have a high priority.

As regards proposals for increasing the pay of junior officers, no information was made available this week as to specific amounts which will be asked. This matter was said to be still under study, with an early decision expected for incorporation in the bill of pay amendments.

Meantime, There has been no action in Congress on the Department of Defense combat pay bill and none is foreseen until the Armed Services Committees complete their hearings on the Universal Military Service and Training Bill.

The consensus is that the long delay in the introduction of the measure, originally proposed by the Army last summer, jeopardized rapid passage of the measure.

The bill seeks $100 a month combat pay for officers and $50 a month for enlisted personnel, retroactive to the beginning of fighting by U. S. forces in Korea.

Presumably, when the Committees complete the manpower hearings, the combat pay bill will have a high priority. But there was no definite word available this week as to when the legislation would be started through Congressional procedures.

Shipyard Anniversary

The New York Naval Shipyard will celebrate its 150th Anniversary 23 Feb.

Established in 1801, the Shipyard, currently commanded by Rear Adm. P. B. Nibecker, has played a role in every major crisis in the country's history: the War of 1812; Civil War; Spanish-American; World War I; World War II; and the present Korean situation.

National, state, city and industrial leaders will join the more than 14,000 civilian employees of the yard in the ceremonies. Members of the committee include Mayor Vincent Impellitteri of New York.

Lawrence, Mass., Sunday Sun — "Through three wars and the intervening years of peace, members of the Army Nurse Corps have distinguished themselves in their selfless care of servicemen. . . . Now, with the celebration of their golden anniversary, the Army nurse assumes a major and vital role in the care of our fighting men."

New York Times — "The things General Eisenhower has had to say since his return from Europe are important, but they take on a real historic significance because of the qualities of the man who says them. . . . We have found a man who can speak for the millions of us—and let us devoutly hope, for the 20,000,000 who live in the free countries of Western Europe."

Waterloo, Iowa, Daily Courier — "The public is willing to be convinced. But we do not believe it has yet received the conclusive evidence of European determination to resist that is needed to eliminate lingering and disquieting doubts about the wisdom of the administration's policy."

Durango, Colo., Herald-Democrat — "No matter what the UN does or does not do, we must maintain our status as the rallying point for the noblest aspirations of free-men. Other peoples' failure to live by high principles is no excuse for our own failure. We are still the great torch-bearers of liberty. That's why we're in Korea."

Washington, D. C., Times-Herald — "Even a child knows that Mr. Truman made very sure of the general (Eisenhower) before leading him up to be commander in chief of the international defense forces. The general has now performed accordingly. He comes back with the novel suggestion that there is no doubt about the all-seeing, all-knowing wisdom of the Truman program in foreign affairs. And then he proceeds to talk against people daring to have doubts."

THE WAR IN KOREA

TANK-LED task forces of United Nations troops in Korea late this week thrust through Communist positions south of Seoul and inflicted extremely heavy casualties on defending Reds. This operation was part of a limited Allied offensive in progress almost all along the 140-mile battle line, extending across the Korean peninsula.

At one point United Nations troops reached the south bank of the Han River and at another point cut the Seoul-Inchon highway. The battleship Missouri which had been on the east coast moved around the peninsula and late this week joined in a heavy bombardment of the Inchon harbor.

In the western sector three composite task forces, including armor, infantry and artillery, of the U. S. Army 3d and 25th Divisions, smashed through the enemy outpost line of resistance to points within four or five miles of Seoul. That city is now under fire from tanks and artillery of advancing United Nations troops.

On the central front South Korean troops, moving through a gap torn in the enemy defenses by American units, advanced to within 25 miles of the 38th parallel, the farthest north reached by any unit in the current drive.

Along the east coast Allied troops made slow progress along the highway, supported by a heavy naval bombardment by the USS Missouri (which later shifted to the west coast), the USS Manchester, and several American destroyers, as well as by attacks of several squadrons of carrier-based Navy planes.

Allied planes dropped large quantities of roofing nails along main and secondary highways, forming the principal Communist supply networks from Manchuria to the front. Over these routes Red trucks move at night to escape Allied air attacks. The roofing nail operation has for its purpose the puncturing of truck tires, thus stalling Communist supply columns on the narrow roads until daylight, when they present inviting targets for Allied planes.

Late this week United States and Turkish troops on the left flank of the United Nations offensive advanced several thousand yards against little opposition. Leading elements of Task Force Bartlett encountered enemy mines four miles west of Anyang-ni, and later met heavy enemy resistance in the same area.

North and northeast of Anyang-ni some elements of Task Force Dolvin smashed into a heavy enemy concentration and inflicted serious casualties on the Reds.

Southeast of Seoul, Task Force Fisher encountered two mine fields and Bangalore torpedoes, equipped with pull-type fire devices with strings running to fox holes 25 or 30 yards from the road. Mines and torpedoes were eliminated, and as the task force proceeded north of the mine field it ran into about 200 enemy soldiers using Russian-type hand grenades and Bangalore torpedoes. After a sharp fight, during which enemy troops were taken under direct tank fire, the Reds withdrew.

Limited gains were made by the X Corps on the central front where a South Korean unit moved to within 25 miles of the 38th parallel, the old dividing line between North and South Korea. Aggressive Allied patrols on the east central front made slight gains.

In the eastern sector two enemy battalions offered moderate to heavy resistance to Republic of Korea forces in the vicinity of Kangnung. South Korean forces took the village of Kusan-ni, five miles southwest of Kangnung, and high ground three miles west of that town.

The current drive of the Eighth Army has no geographic objective. Its purpose is to inflict the maximum casualties on the enemy, with the least possible losses to the United Nations. This purpose is undoubtedly being achieved, as it is estimated that the enemy has lost at least 50,000 in killed and wounded since the outset of the current operations less than three weeks ago, bringing total enemy losses since 1 Jan. to nearly 200,000. Allied losses have been remarkably light.

On one hill, 12 miles southwest of Seoul, taken by Allied troops after a hard fight, a total of 109 unburied enemy dead and 256 fresh graves were counted. The hill had been previously held by an enemy battalion, which indicates that the casualties of the enemy were at least 50 per cent of the force engaged.

In Washington this week the Army announced that the estimated casualties of Chinese Communist troops from the time of their entry into the war on 1 Nov. to 25 Jan. amounted to 134,000 killed and wounded and 616 prisoners of war. From the beginning of the war to 25 Jan. United Nations troops have captured 136,538 North Korean Reds and have killed and wounded an estimated 254,000 North Korean soldiers. This brings the total estimated enemy casualties as of 25 Jan. to 525,164. It should be noted that this figure does not include losses due to frostbite and disease, nor does it include the heavy casualties inflicted during the current Allied offensive, which began late last month.

In addition to casualties inflicted by Allied air and ground attacks the enemy is known to have suffered heavy losses due to frostbite and exposure, especially in the extremely cold, mountainous terrain of northeastern Korea, where Red troops had inadequate clothing and lacked other protection from the subzero weather. Of the prisoners taken in this area many were suffering from frozen extremities, necessitating major amputations. Losses among some units due to frostbite were reported by prisoners to be from 20 to 50 per cent.

Reports that typhus had broken out among North Korean troops were confirmed by interrogation of prisoners. However, none of the prisoners taken had the disease, and there were no indications that it was prevalent among the Chinese. Presumably they had been inoculated against the infection, as is the case with American troops.

There were rumors that typhus had broken out among the civilian population of Seoul. It was reported that civilians had been directed by the occupying Red troops to remain indoors to prevent the spread of the epidemic.

Maj. Gen. John H. Church, former commander of the 24th Division, who has just returned to the United States to assume command of the Infantry School and Center, at Fort Benning, Ga., told a press conference this week that there was not a chance that the Chinese and North Koreans would push the United Nations forces off the Korean peninsula.

The general said the Chinese could greatly increase the number of their troops in action in Korea, but would find it particularly difficult to supply them over lengthening lines of communications. The Chinese, he said, were tough fighters, but lacked air power, tanks and artillery, and with primitive means of transport, such as ox carts, camels and coolies, they would be unable to maintain large numbers of men far from their Manchurian bases.

It was possible, the general said, that United Nations troops might regain the ground between their present positions and the 38th parallel but he did not know whether such an advance was contemplated.

General Church was particularly enthusiastic over the morale and efficiency of American troops now in combat, which he said were the finest in the world today. These battle-tested veterans, he said, were skilled and confident, well able to take care of themselves in all weather and under all combat conditions. The general discounted reports of heavy American losses due to frostbite. He said techniques developed in World War II in the mountains of Italy and the Ardennes had proved adequate to protect our soldiers in Korea from the intense cold.

In the opinion of General Church the Chinese Reds have suffered particularly heavy casualties, especially among their best-trained veteran assault troops. As a result they appear to have become more cautious, and until they mass for attack are difficult for Allied troops and planes to find in the mountainous country.

The general estimates that enemy casualties have outnumbered those of United Nations troops by at least 10 to 1. As an example of heavy enemy losses, he cited those of a Chinese regiment which had pushed an American battalion off a hill, but the position was subsequently regained in a counter-attack. There were counted on the hill 569 dead Chinese soldiers, while our losses were 30 killed. In front of one dead American automatic rifleman there were 17 bodies of Chinese soldiers.

In response to a question, General Church said he thought there was a good chance that Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, former commander of the 24th Division, reported missing in action, may still be alive, a prisoner of the Reds.

Admiral Arthur W. Radford, USN, Commander of the Pacific Fleet, who is in Washington on temporary duty, after a recent trip to the Far East, said that many of the United States ships that have been in action in the Orient are now being relieved for periodical overhaul and maintenance work. For several months it was necessary to keep these warships steadily on duty, but now the reactivation program has developed sufficiently to make it possible to rotate the vessels in the combat area.

The admiral said that the Navy was maintaining a close blockade of both coasts of Korea, forcing the enemy to use land transportation for movements of troops and supplies, a very difficult operation in that country, particularly in winter. He said that Navy pilots flying carrier-based planes felt that they were seriously hurting the enemy by air attacks on transportation facilities, military installations, and troop concentrations.

Referring to the American Naval patrol of Formosan waters the admiral said that adverse weather at present would make it difficult, if not impossible, for Chinese Communists to invade Formosa. The monsoon season will end next month, but the most favorable season for overseas operations in this area is in mid-summer. Admiral Radford said the Chinese Reds had only small vessels to use in any attempted attack on Formosa. Similarly, he said, the Chinese nationalists did not have the necessary equipment for any major landing on the Asiatic mainland.

United Nations fleet units operating off both coasts of Korea continued this week to bombard enemy shore installations, while carrier-based planes operated both in support of ground troops and on interdiction strikes against enemy communications.

For more than two weeks American, British and Canadian warships have kept the port of Inchon and the adjacent area under constant bombardment, to destroy harbor facilities and to prevent the movement of supplies by small boats from Manchuria to the Inchon-Seoul area. Participating in this operation are the U. S. Heavy Cruiser St. Paul, the British Cruisers Belfast and Ceylon, the American Destroyer Hank, and the Canadian Destroyers Cayuga and Nootka. These were later joined by the USS Missouri.

Also operating off the west coast of Korea are British planes from the British Carrier Theseus and Marine Corsairs from the American Light Carrier Bataan. Aerial spotters from the Theseus directed the destruction and neutralization of enemy gun positions by Naval fire. The St. Paul destroyed six enemy anti-aircraft guns with direct hits. British and American aircraft from west coast carriers also struck enemy troop concentrations and military installations.

On the east coast U. S. Naval units bombarded enemy positions in the Kamnung area and provided gunfire support for South Korean ground troops advancing northward along the coast. During the week the U. S. Minesweeper Partridge struck a mine and was blown up off the east coast. Several of the crew were killed and others are missing, though most of the seamen were rescued.

Skyraiders, Corsairs and Panther Jets from heavy United States carriers off the east coast destroyed many gun emplacements, supply and troop buildings, numerous vehicles and several rail and highway bridges.

The United Nations fleet now operating in Korean waters includes warships from Thailand, The Netherlands, the Republic of Korea, Canada, New Zealand, Australia, the United States and the United Kingdom.

Clear weather during most of this week enabled the United Nations Air Force to operate at maximum efficiency. Enemy air activity during the week was negligible. Allied planes continually patrolled the border near the Manchurian airbases of the Chinese Reds, but no enemy planes rose to meet the challenge.

A series of mass attacks by American B-29 Superforts from Okinawa bases pounded enemy transportation facilities, hitting marshalling yards, transfer points and supply warehouses, as well as bridges, tunnels and rolling stock. About 240 tons of bombs were dropped on the important transportation center of Kangye, not far from the Yalu River, in a continuation of the program for the destruction of all facilities for the movement of enemy troops and supplies from Manchuria to the fighting front.

During the week nearly a score of important bridges were destroyed or damaged by Fifth Air Force planes and Superforts. These strikes brought to 110 the number of bridges destroyed or damaged by Far East Air Force planes since 19 Jan., when an intensive air campaign was launched against enemy transport facilities. In more than 13,500 sorties flown since 19 Jan. Far East Air Force planes destroyed or damaged 110 bridges, 22 locomotives, 320 rail cars, 19 tunnels, 1,000 vehicles, and 12,500 buildings, besides inflicting more than 4,000 casualties on enemy troops.

Twenty-two night-intruding B-26 light bombers attacked front-line enemy troops illuminated by flares dropped by accompanying air craft. Results were very successful.

Defense Investigations

The House Committee on Armed Services, under authority granted it by the House on 2 Feb., is launching a continuing study and investigation of all matters pertaining to the National Defense.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) immediately appointed as special investigator for the committee Mr. John J. Courtney, a Minnesota attorney, who has been a member of the committee's professional staff. The House Resolution gave the committee power to subpoena witnesses, records, etc.

Representative Clarence J. Brown (R-Ohio) a member of the Rules Committee which approved the Resolution before it was offered to the House, said that such broad powers should be given to some committee which could act as a sort of clearing house for complaints and inquiries coming to various members. He declared that letters of inquiry to branches of the Defense Department often go for months without an answer, whereas the Committee would have the power of subpoena.

Representative Brown suggested that a subcommittee be created to conduct investigations and that it be selected from among those members who do not have military installations in their districts. Representative Cole (R-N.Y.), who does not have any such installations in his district, objected to this proposal on the grounds that it would be unfair to such members and would deny the committee the benefit of their information and views. The suggestion was not pressed further.

Representative McCormack (D-Mass.) expressed the hope that all members would take up complaints with the committee before making open charges. He said that much of the data received by members is misinformation and if public charges are based upon it "the truth never catches up with it and it brings about misunderstanding on the part of the people."

"That is right," Chairman Vinson responded, "and I think it is the proper thing to do. For instance, a statement was made in the paper that over a million uniforms were being ordered for the women in the Navy and Marine Corps. The truth of the matter is this: A general survey of the capacity of every plant in America is being made to see what they can do in case of an all-out mobilization. The services have to do that. So this manufacturer, when they made the survey of his plant and he said he could make a million uniforms, immediately thought he had an order for a million uniforms. As a matter of fact, there have been only a few uniforms ordered. So we run down all those things."

Free Insurance Bill

The Senate Committee on Finance will meet shortly to consider final draft of amendments to the House-passed bill for so-called free insurance for Service personnel.

The bill, as passed by the House, would discontinue the issuance of future National Service Life Insurance Policies and would grant an automatic $10,000 payment to dependents for persons who lose their lives in the Service. The latter provision dates back to the beginning of the Korean War.

The Department of Defense submitted a letter opposing the bill, but concluding with the statement that the Bureau of the Budget had advised it that its report against the bill was not in accordance with the President's program. The President and the Bureau of the Budget had approved the legislation.

The Department's views, expressed in a letter from Assistant Secretary of the Navy Floberg, based its opposition on the grounds that the death gratuity thus granted was inadequate to meet the needs of bereaved service families and that it denied the individual the low-cost NSLI insurance. The latter, the Department pointed out, also serves as a financial protection for the individual.

The Department suggested that if the bill should be enacted it would like to have it amended to permit all those who so desire to take up NSLI insurance within a period following the enactment of the bill.

Warrant Officer Bill

Disturbed by the Pentagon's delay in submitting to Congress legislation to liberalize the promotion of warrant officers, Representative Pat Sutton (D-Tenn.) has written Secretary of Defense Marshall requesting data compiled by a task subcommittee of the Personnel Policy Board.

It is understood that a draft of the warrant officer bill, salient feature of which would be to raise the number of warrant officers in the W-4 and W-3 categories, has been prepared by the Personnel Policy Board, but it must be cleared by the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force and the Assistant Secretaries of Defense, before Secretary Marshall sends it to the Bureau of the Budget.

Representative Sutton, who for months has been concerned about the "inequitable treatment" given to the warrant officers of the Armed Forces, had expected a Department bill to reach Congress by 1 Feb.

This week, he said he was becoming a bit impatient, but would wait "a while longer" before sponsoring a bill of his own. The likelihood is, however, that the Department will speed up its processing of the measure to permit its early introduction in Capitol Hill.

In view of the widespread recognition among Senators and Representatives for the valuable service rendered by the experienced personnel in warrant officer status, rapid approval is foreseen for any bill which will insure the Department's expressed policy that all qualified warrant officers will be given the opportunity to reach W-4 status prior to retirement.

Under the present arbitrary limit of 3 per cent on the number of warrant officers in the W-4 classification, this ambition patently is impossible of achievement.

OUTDOOR PRODUCTION LINE

The world's largest outdoor airplane production line—more than a mile long—is at Kelly AFB, Tex., which is also the world's largest air depot.

Decentralized Pentagon

The Department of Defense is working on a dispersal plan aimed to move sufficient officers from the Pentagon and other key locations in Washington so that each agency would have a core of command to continue functioning in an outlying area in case of an atomic attack on the capital.

Maj. Gen. William R. Schmidt, USA, chairman of the Department's Joint Decentralization Board, so told the House Committee on Public Works during its recent discussion of the proposed program to provide for the construction of Federal Buildings outside of, but in the vicinity of Washington.

"Our plan of dispersal has not been completely finished," General Schmidt told the Committee. "We visualize our major offices split. The National Guard Bureau would be moved out of the Pentagon. Some officers will be moved from the Pentagon and some from the present Quartermaster General and Chief of Engineer offices. There would be some in their present locations and some in the dispersal area, which should be 18 to 24 miles out. If one place goes, the other can continue to function."

General Schmidt made it plain to the Committee that the Department is interested in having similar action taken for all government agencies. "We are interested in the entire government," he said. "If there is any chaos in government our job is multiplied that many times."

Honor Four Chaplains

President Truman spoke 3 Feb. at the dedication of the interdenominational Chapel of the Four Chaplains in Philadelphia.

The Chapel, within the Grace Baptist Temple, was built with funds collected from the thousands of persons of all denominations, to memorialize the four chaplains who lost their lives 3 Feb. 1943, when the troopship Dorchester was torpedoed off Greenland. The chaplains helped quiet the men and gave their life belts to save others. They were: George L. Fox and Clark V. Poling, Protestants; Alexander R. Goode, a Jewish rabbi, and John P. Washington, a Catholic priest.

Speaking of the men's fearless action, President Truman said: "If we remember our faith in God, if we live by it as our forefathers did, we need have no fear of the future."

The President was met at the station and later introduced in the Chapel by Maj.-Gen. William J. Donovan, chief of the Office of Strategic Services in World War II.

The invocation was said by Maj. Gen. Charles I. Carpenter, chief of Air Force Chaplains. Rabbi H. S. Goodkowitz, father of Chaplain Goode, one of the four who went down with the Dorchester, recited the 96th Psalm in Hebrew. Prayers then were said by the Rev. Daniel K. Poling, brother of Chaplain Poling, of the Ft. Washington Collegiate Church, New York; Maj. Gen. Roy H. Parker, Army Chief of Chaplains, and Dr. Bertram W. Korn, of the Reform Congregation Israel of Philadelphia.

The apostolic benediction was given by Rear Admiral Stanton W. Salisbury, of the Navy Chaplain Corps. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, father of Chaplain Poling, presided.

Military Mail Delayed

All classes of mail being sent to Army and Air Force personnel overseas and in the United States, except first class mail and air parcel post up to two pounds in weight, is being delayed as a result of the railroad work stoppage, the Department of the Army and the Department of the Air Force announced 5 Feb.

Delays in dispatch of mail already in transit but which has not yet been turned over to the Army-Air Force Postal Service authorities, at Ports of Embarkation in the United States, may be expected. Three or four weeks from now, Postal Service officials pointed out, this will result in soldiers and airmen throughout the world experiencing a marked decrease in mail delivery.

Mail coming in from service personnel stationed outside the continental limits of the United States is also expected to pile up at Ports of Embarkation if the railroad situation continues.

Decry Housing Shortage

dations, it is estimated that 300 families will require quarters locally. Inasmuch as this base is situated on the Mojave Desert, 50 or 60 miles distant from communities which are capable of an appreciable amount of rental possibilities, it is evident that the personnel of my command are seriously restricted for adequate housing."

Camp Breckinridge, Ky.—"Comparison of rents being charged before this post was reactivated and the present rate: Four families live in a converted barn. There are 11 two-room apartments available. Four are occupied by servicemen. The other seven are vacant. No modern facilities, no plumbing of any type, outside toilet with shower, walls of plasterboard, paint coming off. Occupants must use a coal stove for heat and hot plate for cooking. Rent, $50 a month for two rooms. Previous civilian occupants were paying $15 per month."

Following Mr. Hays' remarks, Representative Pat Sutton (D-Tenn.) took the floor to reiterate the need for Service housing. He criticized the Navy's desire to utilize the Lustron plant for manufacture of aircraft parts at a time when the Navy is in dire need of housing. To support his case, Representative Sutton presented the following reports from various Naval Districts to the Chief of Naval Personnel on the housing situation:

Eleventh Naval District.—"A representative of your office has requested that I forward to you a statement on the housing situation in the San Diego area insofar as naval personnel are concerned."

"The housing situation in the San Diego area is critical, both in private housing and in Navy and Federal housing. Motel rates are gradually increasing and housekeeping rooms for couples are very scarce. My housing office has over 500 applications for this last type of accommodation. Medium priced private rentals are rapidly decreasing while the listing of rentals in the $100 price per month bracket is increasing."

"The Navy has 745 Homoka housing units in this area. There are over 200 applicants waiting for vacancies in these units. The Navy has 3,492 units in permanent housing projects in this area. There are approximately 300 shore based personnel awaiting assignment to these units. In an attempt to make space available in the permanent housing projects, 300 eviction notices have been served to tenants who have completed 3 years tenancy as of August 1, 1950. In many instances, extensions have been granted where tenants were found to be building or buying homes. Most of these extensions are to be terminated on February 1, 1951."

"The shortage for housing for families of personnel at sea (in aircraft squadrons and ships) is extremely critical. There are over 1,000 applications on file for two-bedroom units in Federal projects for which these people are eligible. In an attempt to alleviate the situation for sea personnel with large families, the hardship cases in this group are being assigned to Homoka housing. There are many instances of personnel with two preschool age children being housed in one bedroom Federal units. Vacancies in the Federal housing projects are very, very scarce. It is believed that this is due to the increased labor and employment in local defense concerns as well as civil service personnel in Government activities."

Eighth Naval District.—"1. The housing situation in New Orleans is still somewhat critical, and civilian housing is quite expensive."

"2. Enlisted personnel with children will have a varying period of delay, 1 to 4 weeks, depending upon their needs, before assignment in the Bienville homes (low rent) housing naval housing project. These apartments are unfurnished except for stove and refrigerator."

"3. Officers and enlisted personnel without children are not assigned quarters in Bienville homes at present."

"4. Civilian furnished housing is available at rates of $50 up for one-bedroom apartments, and $90 up for two-bedroom houses. Unfurnished civilian housing is very scarce."

"5. Hotel accommodations are practically impossible, except by very early reservation, and then limited to a maximum of 5 days. Auto courts are available at $5 up per day."

"6. Families should not be brought to the New Orleans area until housing has been secured unless sufficient personal funds are available to cover the waiting period."

UNITED STATES ARMY

SC Supply Post

Brig. Gen. Eugene V. Elder, USA, has succeeded Brig. Gen. Alfred M. Shearer, USA, as the Chief of U.S. Army Signal Corps supply activities, the Office of the Chief Signal Officer announced recently.

General Shearer, who has been Chief of the Procurement and Distribution Division, Office of the Chief Signal Officer, since 1949, retired 31 Jan. General Elder has been his assistant.

As a colonel, General Shearer was transferred in June 1942 to the European Theater of Operations, as Director of the Communications Division of the Services of Supply. In July, 1943, he was appointed Deputy Chief Signal Officer of the Services of Supply in Europe.

Returning to the United States in July, 1945, General Shearer assumed command of the Philadelphia Procurement District. The following year he became Commanding Officer of the Sacramento Signal Depot. He was appointed Assistant Chief of the Procurement and Distribution Division of the Office of the Chief Signal Officer in July, 1948, and became Chief a year later. He was promoted to Brigadier General 3 Feb. 1950, with date of rank from 26 Jan. 1950.

Legal Adoption Needed

The Comptroller General has ruled in decision B-52089 that increased rental and subsistence allowances accrue to an officer with a dependent child, over whom he has legal custody, only when the child has been legally adopted. The decision was rendered in the case of Maj. Richard O. Flinn, Jr., Chaplain Corps, AUS, the legal custodian of a child, Jack Wheeler. The official digest of the decision follows:

"An Army officer who was given legal custody and control of a minor child without effecting its legal adoption through judicial proceedings as required by the statutes of the State in which the child was domiciled is not entitled under the act of 10 June 1922, as amended, and the Pay Readjustment Act of 1942, to increased rental and subsistence allowances as for an officer with a dependent child."

Mrs. Walker Accepts Award

Presentation of the first Oak Leaf Cluster to the Distinguished Service Medal was made last week to Mrs. Walton H. Walker, widow of Gen. Walton H. Walker, USA, at Ft. Hood Tex.

The posthumous award was made by Lt. Gen. LeRoy Lutes, USA, commanding general of the Fourth Army. The ceremony was witnessed by Capt. Sam Walker, son of the late Eighth Army commander, Captain Walker's wife and other members of the immediate family.

Many friends from nearby communities attended the ceremony along with M/Sgt. Walter Reynolds, who had served with the general for nearly eight years.

Demotion and Elimination

The Army's procedure in effecting the elimination, demotion, or relief from active duty of officers and warrant officers unsuitable or lacking in moral standards is described in detail in a new version of AR 605-200, which will become effective 1 March.

The regulations are designed to insure protection for both the individual and the Government.

24th Div. Veterans

Officers of the 24th Infantry Division Association are conducting a nationwide canvass in an effort to contact the 30,000 men who once served with the Division in its long trail from Australia to Korea via New Guinea, the Philippines, and Japan.

Former members of the Division can contact the association concerning membership by writing Col. Kenwood Ross, Membership Chairman, at 1387 Main St., Springfield, Mass.

At its last annual convention in Chicago, the Association elected as its officers James J. O'Donnell, President; Joseph I. Peyton, Secretary; and William V. Davidson, Treasurer.

Maj. Gen. James A. Lester, beloved one time Division Commander, recently said of the Division:

"Today finds our Division engaged in the bitter struggle with the evil forces of aggression. The clarion call for the first American forces to resist these forces of aggression came to our Division."

"When the history of the first six weeks of the Korean War is written and is compared with the combat that our units have known in other wars—the Seven Days Battle around Richmond, Antietam, Chickamauga, Gettysburg, the fields of Lorraine, New Guinea, and throughout the Philippine Archipelago—it will be recorded that 'this was their finest hour.'"

Award For Col. Mashbir

Col. Sidney F. Mashbir of the Army Adjutant General's Office was awarded an Oak Leaf Cluster to the Army Commendation Ribbon by Maj. Gen. Edward F. Witsell, USA, The Adjutant General, at a Pentagon ceremony on 1 Feb.

Colonel Mashbir received the award for meritorious service performed as Commanding Officer of the Allied Translator and Interpreter Section in the Pacific area in 1945. Through Colonel Mashbir's exposure of the operations of the Japanese Hoko system he greatly contributed to the success of the early occupation mission in Japan. He has been with the Adjutant General's Office in Washington since January 1946, and is presently assigned as Executive Officer to The Adjutant General.

If private bill H. R. 2373 becomes law, Colonel Mashbir would be recommissioned as a colonel in the Regular Army. This legislation has been introduced by Representative Van Zandt (R-Pa.) to bring about the placing on the lineal list of the Regular Army of Colonel Mashbir who resigned his commission to go into business in the Philippines to act as an Intelligence Officer for the Army prior to the occupation of the Philippines by the Japanese during World War II.

NG Warrant Officers

"Recommendations for the temporary promotion of such warrant officers to the grade of CWO, AUS, will be submitted by present commanders, through channels, on DA AGO Form 78 (Recommendation for Promotion of Officer) to The Adjutant General, Washington 25, D. C., Attention: AGPO-P."

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

Marine Corps general officers, Maj. Gen. Merwin H. Silverthorn, on the left, and Maj. Gen. Franklin A. Hart, on the right, were nominated this week by President Truman for promotion to the rank of Lieutenant General.

Disability Retirements

The Marine Corps has outlined the procedure to be followed in effecting disability retirements.

A recent directive states that commanding officers of Naval hospitals in the continental United States will discharge enlisted Marines to the stations to which they are joined when the following conditions have been met:

1—A physical evaluation board has arrived at a recommended finding that the member is unfit to perform the duties of his rank.

2—The commanding officer of the hospital considers that further hospitalization and treatment are not required.

The new policy also authorizes the commanding officer of the station to which the Marine is joined to place him in an awaiting-orders status providing the two conditions above have been met, and:

1—The commanding officer of the station considers that the services of the member may not be utilized to advantage.

2—The member has agreed to permit any accumulated or earned leave to be charged off while in such a status.

The Marine will then be issued the necessary instructions directing him to proceed home to await orders pending action on the retirement proceedings in his case.

If placed on the retired list, the leave record of the member will be balanced as of the day prior to the date he is placed on the retired list, charging as leave, to the maximum extent possible, the period while awaiting orders.

Navy Research Panel

National experts in psychology and human relations met this week with key Naval personnel at the Navy Department to extend the Navy's research program in leadership and morale.

Members of the Office of Naval Research Advisory Panel on Human Relations discussed and evaluated new research proposals in group performance, morale and motivation. Data from such scientific investigations will go eventually to the fighting forces where it will be used to increase the effectiveness of our combat teams.

Institutions seeking support for their research are the University of Michigan, Urban Life Research Institute at Tulane, University of Oklahoma, University of Illinois and Culpepper Hertz, Inc.

Dr. Margaret Mead, author and anthropologist, now Associate Curator of the American Museum of Natural History, will attend the meeting. Other panel members will be Dr. John G. Darley, University of Minnesota; Dr. E. Lowell Kelly, University of Michigan; Dr.

Rensis Likert, Institute for Social Research, University of Michigan; Dr. George Lombard, Harvard University; Dr. F. F. Stephan, Princeton University; Dr. Jerome S. Bruner, Harvard University; Dr. George Saslow, Washington University and Joseph Pataky, Bureau of Naval Personnel.

Attending the meeting from the Office of Naval Research were Rear Adm. T. A. Solberg, chief; Dr. A. T. Waterman, chief scientist; Capt. S. M. Tucker, assistant chief for research, and Capt. C. W. Shilling, deputy for biological sciences.

Also attending were Dr. Eugene Carstater, head of the training research branch of the Bureau of Naval Personnel and Capt. G. N. Raines, head of the neuropsychiatric branch of the Navy Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

Retired USN Capt. Named

Capt. Robert T. Sutherland, jr., USN-Ret., naval architect and marine engineer, became vice president and chief engineer this week of Brown & Bigelow, remembrance advertising firm and large publishers of calendars.

The company's board of directors promoted Captain Sutherland to a vice-presidency on recommendation of president Charles A. Ward. Captain Sutherland had been acting chief engineer since August last year when he voluntarily retired from the Navy after 20 years commissioned service.

Tribute to Col. Chambers

Representative Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) on 5 Feb. paid tribute in Congress to the military achievements of Col. Justice M. Chambers, USMCR, the 200th Marine to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor and hailed the colonel's service as a staff member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Congressman Mansfield noted that Colonel Chambers, in addition to the Congressional Medal of Honor, is the recipient of three Purple Hearts, the Silver Star, the Legion of Merit, five combat stars and three Presidential Unit Citations.

"Colonel Chambers has trained and trained well for a life of service to our Republic," Representative Mansfield said. "On such men as this has our country depended since the American Revolution." He related that Colonel Chambers this year will complete 20 years service in the Marine Corps Reserve.

Naval Experiment Station

Rear Adm. Wilson D. Leggett, jr., USN, was relieved as Commanding Officer and Director of the U. S. Naval Engineering Experiment Station, Annapolis, Md., by Capt. Fred W. Walton, USN, on 31 Jan.

Selection Boards

Selection boards for Navy captains and commanders may be set ahead as much as seven months this year, according to present indications.

A large number of the officers who were recommended by selection boards late last year have already been promoted or are scheduled for promotion before the end of the current fiscal year, it was learned, and promotion lists for captains and commanders are expected to be non-existent by the end of July unless new boards are convened.

In October, the Navy selected 346 officers for promotion to captain—the largest number ever recommended. At present, all but 75 of the officers have been elevated to their new rank, and these are expected to receive promotions within the next five months.

Under an accelerated promotion program which moved 1950 selection boards ahead by about three months, the Navy also selected 822 Navy line officers for promotion to the temporary rank of commander. Only 150 officers within the zone were passed over and the selections tripled those of the previous year. More than 200 of these officers had been promoted by the end of December, last year, but the Navy was unable to supply current figures.

Although it is not likely that the 1951 boards will again select such large numbers of officers, it is "entirely probable," a Navy source stated, that the boards will be convened before the end of, or shortly after, the current fiscal year.

Marines Get Three Stars

President Truman this week nominated two Marine officers, Major Generals Merwin H. Silverthorn and Franklin A. Hart, for promotion to the rank of Lieutenant General.

Assistant to the Commandant of the Marine Corps, General Silverthorn has served in his present rank since May 1949. Born in Minneapolis in 1896, he entered the Marine Corps as an enlisted man in 1917, and in July of that year, sailed for France with the Fifth Marine Regiment. He was commissioned in June of the following year in France, and participated in four of the major campaigns. His World War I decorations include the Navy Cross, Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, Purple Heart, and the French Croix de Guerre with Silver Star. During World War II, he served as Chief of Staff, Third Amphibious Corps, and was awarded the Legion of Merit for service in the recapture of Guam, and a Distinguished Service Medal for operations in the Southern Palau and Ryukyu Islands. Prior to his present assignment, he was Director of the Marine Corps Reserve.

General Hart, Commanding General of the Marine Corps Schools at Quantico, Va., was born in 1894 in Cuthbert, Ga., and is a graduate of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Marines in 1917, and served in France as Commanding Officer, Company "B," Machine Gun Battalion, Fifth Brigade. In World War II, General Hart commanded the Twenty-Fourth Marines in the assault and capture of Roi-Namur Island, Kwajalein Atoll, for which he was decorated with the Navy Cross. He was subsequently decorated with the Legion of Merit for commanding the Regiment in the battle for Saipan and Tinian. As Assistant Division Commander of the Fourth Marine Division at Iwo Jima, he was awarded a Bronze Star Medal. He has served successively as Director of the Marine Corps Reserve, Director of Public Information, Director of Personnel, Commanding General of the Marine Corps Recruit Depot at Parris Island, S. C., Commanding General of the 2nd Marine Division, and Commanding General of the Marine Corps Schools.

USNA Graduate Convicted

Capt. George L. Hansen, a 1927 graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy, has been convicted by court martial at Charleston, S. C., and relieved as commanding officer of the Naval Receiving Station there, it was announced there this week.

The 6th Naval District Headquarters said that the charge before the court was "improper use of government materials and employment of Naval personnel." In Washington, the Navy Department said that no further details would be forthcoming until the case has been reviewed.

to serve the Marine Corps loyally and well.

In order to assist the Marine Corps in getting its women's reserve under way, the Navy made available its training facilities for women, already in operation since July 1942. The first class of 75 women Marine officers graduated from the U. S. Naval Midshipmen School (WR), South Hadley, Massachusetts, on May 4, 1943. The first "boot" class of 722 enlisted women reservists finished its training on 25 April 1943 at the U. S. Naval Training School (WR)—more familiarly called "Hunter"—The Bronx, New York. A few women of these first officer and enlisted classes "shipped over" in 1943 and are now "regulars."

By July 1943, the Marine Corps had established its own training center for its women personnel, and during that month both officer candidates' school and "boot" training were transferred to the Marine Corps Women's Reserve Schools at Camp Lejeune, N. C. The Schools were in continuous operation until hostilities with Japan came to an end. Today, women in the regular Corps receive their recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot at Parris Island, and their officer indoctrination at the Marine Corps Schools in Quantico.

During the three and a half years of their war-time service, "WR's" performed an ever-increasing number of assignments. The original prediction in 1943 of more than thirty kinds of jobs had grown by 1944 into at least two hundred. Many women were trained in specialist schools upon completing basic indoctrination, such as quartermaster, communications, commissary, motor transport, and various aviation specialties. Forty per cent of the wartime Marine Corps Women's Reserve personnel was allotted to Marine Corps aviation and replaced men not only in routine clerical and administrative billets, but also as aerologists, link trainers, parachute riggers, and control tower operators. Most of the jobs, however, were not particularly glamorous; many of them were monotonously routine. But all fitted into a pattern of useful accomplishment of which the members of the Marine Corps Women's Reserve were—and still are—justifiably proud.

Women reservists were proud also of running their own outfits. Organized into battalions or squadrons, each with a woman commanding officer, they operated their own organizational offices, mess halls and recreational facilities, and were responsible for the appearance and upkeep of their own barracks. Their attractive and well-policed areas were admittedly an asset to any post or station. Few male officers, from commanding generals on down, ever missed an opportunity to "inspect" them or show them off. And as the "WR's" themselves in their smart, trim uniforms acquired self-assurance and traditional Marine Corps esprit, their usefulness gained wide recognition and their skills became increasingly sought after. From coast to coast their presence enlivened Marine Corps commands. Their weekly reviews at Camp Lejeune, led by their own 45-piece Marine Corps Women's Reserve band, have become a legend.

By September 1946 all but a handful of Marine women on duty at Marine Corps Headquarters had laid away their uniforms and returned to civilian pursuits. Many had married while in the Corps and were occupied with the customary feminine role of housewife. Certainly none foresaw, or even contemplated, either being back in uniform themselves or that other women would again soon be wearing the familiar Marine Corps green and scarlet. The comparatively few "WR's" who transferred to regular status in Nov. 1948, upon the Marine Corps' implementation of the women's integration act, did so believing that their chief function would remain that of providing the Corps with a small but continuing nucleus of women trained and ready for rapid expansion should need ever arise. Other wartime women reservists, not choosing to make the Marine Corps a career but eager nevertheless to keep actively in touch with the Corps, joined one of the women's organized reserve platoons, established in mid-1949 in thirteen of the larger cities.

Little did anyone think when the first of these platoons was activated in Kansas City, that "WR's" would so soon again be freeing Marine Corps men for combat or that for the first time in history, so far as is known, American women would march off with their men to answer their country's call to colors. But such was to be the distinction for those women Marines of the thirteen organized reserve platoons; for when the male Marine Corps reserve battalions, of which the women's platoons were an integral part, were mobilized last summer, the women, too, were sent to duty once again to major Marine Corps continental posts and stations. There also once again, along with the newer recruits of the regular Corps, they are performing many useful assignments. Cheerfully and proudly, Marine women—regulars and reservists—stand ready to serve their country and the Corps whenever, wherever, and however they are needed.

And so, on 13 Feb., as women Marines, past and present, gather together to celebrate the eighth anniversary of their

World War II service, they will be united not only by bonds of loyalty to their country, the Corps and each other, but by the pleasure and satisfaction which comes of the knowledge of a job well done. Above all else, they are proudest of just being "Marines."

Tactical Air Training

A comprehensive training program for qualifying a large group of Tactical Air Control Parties is announced by Maj. Gen. W. R. Wolfenbarger, USAF, commander of the Ninth Tactical Air Force with headquarters at Pope AFB, N. C.

A Tactical Air Control Party is a team consisting of an experienced fighter pilot and enlisted radio technicians. These teams are employed with front line Army units to control tactical aircraft hitting targets very close to the front lines. They position themselves so that they can observe the target, describe it to the pilots overhead, and point out terrain features and the location of friendly front lines by means of mobile two way radios. Fighter-bomber pilots are used in the teams as they understand the problems facing a pilot in the air, "speak the same language," and therefore can better guide the planes to the target.

A group of 14 pilots and 34 airmen are currently in training at Pope. After the training here, the group will go to Fort Benning for parachute training, and upon completion of jump training, will return to Pope to serve as a cadre of specialists to instruct subsequent classes and to be used in actual operations as needed. All members of this group are volunteers for parachute training. Subsequent classes will be held every two weeks.

Lt. Col. Paul P. Douglas, Director of Operations and Training for headquarters of the Ninth Air Force is supervising the training of the controllers.

Lackland Report

Secretary of the Air Force Thomas K. Finletter on 3 Feb. announced that the three-man civilian investigating committee sent to Lackland AFB, Tex. to report on living conditions at the indoctrination center there, has found that the general health of airmen at the base is good.

"The committee found that there have been no pneumonia deaths at the base, nor is there any evidence of an epidemic of respiratory diseases. Furthermore, the committee asserts that medical facilities are serving adequately to maintain a higher than average standard of health on that base," Mr. Finletter said.

Members of the committee working under the guidance of Assistant Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert were: Mr. Merrill Meigs, Chicago newspaper executive and former War Production Board official; Arthur Flemming, President of the Ohio Wesleyan University; and General Courtney Hodges, USA-Ret.

Mr. Finletter said he was issuing his statement on the general nature of the committee's findings because of published reports which have been critical of health conditions at Lackland. The detailed report of the committee is still under study by the Air Force.

Protests AF Policy

Lt. Col. Joe Foss, who won the Congressional Medal of Honor while a Marine Corps fighter pilot during World War II and who is now commander of South Dakota's Air National Guard, slated for reactivation on 1 March, has protested the Air Force policy regarding assignment of Medal of Honor winners.

The Air Force has stated that recipients of the Nation's top award are not to be assigned to combat duties. Colonel Foss is attempting to obtain a waiver to this proviso. Senator Case (R-S.D.) related that the famed flier said "he'd almost be willing to return the medal if this would enable him to get combat duty."

Jet Fighter Trainers

Link Aviation Inc., Binghamton, N. Y., has been awarded a $10 million production contract for jet fighter trainers.

Announcement of the receipt of the contract from the Air Force was made by Mr. E. Allan Williford, Link vice president and general manager, who indicated that the firm would increase its production force by some 500 employees. The company now employs 800 people.

Receipt of the new order puts Link's backlog in the neighborhood of $20 million, Mr. Williford announced. The firm is now completing deliveries on two production contracts for SNJ and F-3D trainers for the Navy and is beginning design and manufacture of a quantity of B-47B jet bombers for the Air Force.

The new jet fighter contract is a supplement to the original order for C-11A type trainers which Link received last April. The original contract was valued at approximately one and a half million dollars.

The accelerated demands for the C-11A follow an extensive testing of the trainer during the past year at the Air Force Pilot Instrument School at Tyndall AFB, Fla. One of the initial uses of the equipment, the Air Force has announced, will be in its new All-Weather Fighter Crew Training School at Tyndall.

Temp. Lt. Cols.

Air Force officials expected that the board considering officers for temporary advancement to lieutenant colonel would adjourn late this week. Release of the list probably will be made one to two weeks after the board finishes its work.

Meantime, the major commands are slated to announce selections of officers to the temporary rank of major in mid-month.

First ANG Retirement

Brig. Gen. Hillford R. Wallace, ANG, became the first Air National Guard General Officer to retire when he stepped down recently from his command of the 142d Fighter Wing, covering fighter units in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Western Montana.

General Wallace turned over his command to Col. John N. Lavin of Spokane at ceremonies preceding an elaborate retirement party on 20 Jan. The Adjutant General for the State of Washington, Brig. Gen. Lilburn H. Stevens, officiated at the ceremonies.

Air Force Register

Air Force officials said this week the 1951 register of officers is slated for release about 1 March. When released, it will be available from the Government Printing Office.

ment to the permanent rank of major. Hundreds of these officers also have been serving in the temporary grade of major or above.

Thus, for the two lists it is seen that of a total of 6,084 officers named for higher permanent rank, all but 1,652 have been serving temporarily in grades equal to or higher than the permanent grade from which they were selected.

Last year, it was reported that the permanent promotions were to be made over a period of about a year and Air Force officials emphasized this week that the permanent advancements still will be spread out over a considerable length of time.

The Air Force set 19 Oct. 1950 and 14 Dec. 1950, respectively, as the effective dates for the temporary promotions to lieutenant colonel and major, because these were the dates of rank set for the permanent promotions at the time the latter were approved by the President.

All of the 575 new temporary lieutenants are on the USAF Promotion List, while of the 1,077 new temporary majors, 1,023 are on the USAF Promotion List, 26 are medical officers, two are dental officers, 22 are medical service corps officers and four are chaplains.

AF Recall Procedure

The Air Force has announced the procedure to be used in the recalling of thousands of reservists to active military service as part of the accelerated buildup to a strength of 971,000 men and women.

The Air Force statement outlined the method for summoning persons to active duty as follows:

"Initially, most Reservists will be called to temporary active duty for a period of approximately five days, at processing stations nearest their homes. This temporary duty period is designed to give the Reservist the maximum consideration possible in determining definitely whether he is to be ordered to extended active duty. This will be accomplished by giving the necessary physical examinations, classification based on education and experience attained since the last period of extended active duty, and a determination of his status with respect to any request for additional delay in complying with extended active duty orders.

"The Air Force emphasized that no definite steps should be taken by a Reservist to close out his personal and business obligations until he has completed his temporary duty tour at the processing station and is advised definitely of his status.

"The Reservist will be notified ten days prior to the date when he will be required to report to the processing station.

"Upon completion of a Reservist's temporary duty, one of the following will result:

"1. He will return to his home for a period of 30 days to arrange for his personal affairs and prepare for extended active duty. Orders for this extended active duty, at a specific duty station, will either be issued at the processing station, or be sent to the Reservist at his home. In some cases, he may forego this 30-day delay if he so desires.

"2. He may be advised that he does not meet current physical standards. In this event, he will be told that he will not again be called to active duty until either his physical limitations, as specified, are corrected, or until such time as existing physical criteria may be lowered to include personnel with his physical limitations.

"3. He will be advised, at the end of the processing period, of action taken on any request for additional delay in reporting for extended active duty.

"When information is current and definite on a Reservist it may not be necessary for him to undergo his initial processing, but he will be assured a 30-day delay in reporting in the event he so desires.

"It is anticipated that extended tours of duty for officers and airmen affected under this program will be for a period of 21 months.

"Extended active duty assignments will utilize, to the maximum extent possible, the qualifications of each individual. Those qualifications may not necessarily be the same as the individual's last Air Force assignment, but rather a combination of that and civilian experience gained since World War II.

"In meeting its personnel requirements the Air Force will exhaust its Organized Reserve. However, since all critical requirements cannot be met from the Organized Reserve, some individuals with special qualifications will be called concurrently from the Volunteer Reserve. In this connection those members of the Volunteer reserve who have requested extended active duty will be utilized wherever possible ahead of involuntary recalls."

Air Rescue Service

Silver Star decorations for heroic action in the Korean air war were presented recently to four officers of the 3d Air Rescue Squadron who risked their lives to save United Nations fighter pilots who crashed behind enemy lines.

Brig. Gen. J. V. Crabb, USAF, Deputy for Operations, Headquarters, Far East Air Force, presented the Silver Stars to Capt. John C. Shumate, Capt. Oscar N. Tibbetts, Capt. David C. McDaniel, and 1st Lt. Donald R. Michaelis.

Keep up with your friends by reading the Army Navy Air Force Journal each week.

Flying hospitals for evacuating the wounded... swift troop transports... or giant all-purpose cargo carriers—new airplanes such as the Douglas C-118A bring new versatility to the Military Air Transport Service. The C-118A, soon to be in service, is the Air Force designation for the DC-6A Liftmaster—a larger version of the famous DC-6 passenger transport. Flying payloads up to 30,000 lbs. at 320 mph with a range of about 1,740 miles, the C-118A will do one-third more work than the C-54 at one-third less operating cost! Thus Douglas answers the need for a high-speed, long-range dependable military air transport. Meanwhile, on the drafting board and in the laboratory, Douglas engineers and research experts continue to pioneer new and more advanced aircraft in the direction of turbo-prop, jet and rocket propulsion.

"The time has come when we must put enduring steel in the shining armor of our good intentions."—ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF DEFENSE ANNA M. ROSENBERG.

OUR PRIORITY LIST

1. Establishment and operation of a Universal Training and Service program and the building up of readiness for industrial production for war as bases for an "enduring system of National Defense."
2. Continued scientific research and development, particularly in all new and unconventional devices and methods of warfare.
3. Revision of Career Compensation Act to correct injustices demonstrated by experience, including adequate compensation of junior officers with long service in enlisted grades. Permanent legislation for special pay for personnel actually engaged in combat with the enemy. More realistic allowances, including those for travel and per diem. Improved retirement pay for disabled and wounded personnel.
4. Early construction of adequate government quarters for Service personnel at all permanent stations, supplemented by government-sponsored private construction to meet expansion needs.
5. Continuance and extension of medical and dental care for Service families; provision for education at government expense of children of Service personnel at stations where suitable free public schools are not available; and survivor benefits for dependents.
6. Restoration of military exemptions from Federal Income Tax broadened to exclude all retired pay from taxation. Recall to active duty of militarily useful retired officers, together with liberalization of ban on dual compensation so that the government may utilize fully the services of all capable retired personnel.
7. A satisfactory and orderly promotion system for warrant officers to assure all qualified appointees of reaching top grade prior to retirement.
8. Adjustment of promotion procedures to meet current emergency needs and to assure retention on active duty of all qualified officers.

An Old American Custom. The American people should know that if there are outcroppings of defeatism in the daily and periodical press they do not reflect the attitude of the Armed Forces nor find sympathy in the fighting men. Instead they reflect the traditional "blow hot and blow cold" attitude toward the American forces of defense. Too frequently today there is a disposition to criticize General MacArthur and the conduct of the war in Korea. Reading some of these critiques by civilian observers one finds it hard to believe they are discussing the same leader whose exploits from New Guinea to Tokyo won world wide acclaim and gave him a permanent place in history. A few short months ago the planning and execution of the Inchon landings were being hailed as the work of a military genius. Can his critics truly believe he is now blundering and resigned to a war of attrition with the Chinese Reds? Other writers and politicians find our over-all military leadership inadequate, the design and capabilities of our weapons below enemy standards, and the American fighting man soft and less willing to endure hardships than those of other nations. These views have a familiar ring. They have been raised whenever we have met reverses in any war from the Revolution on. In World War II they were aroused by local set backs from the deserts of Africa to the Battle of the Bulge—but they didn't affect the American fighting man who still plowed through to victories. The current talk of the ruggedness of the Chinese Reds as compared to the Americans is a familiar echo of the earlier attitude of awe toward the so-called invincible German military machine.

Secretary of Defense Marshall, speaking last November in a frank vein concerning the fluctuating attitude toward our defenses, said, "I fear we have given a demonstration somewhat of emotional instability." Perhaps that is what is happening in some quarters today. Free and open criticism is not only a precious right, it is also a traditionally American characteristic and the fighting man recognizes it as such. So the American soldiers, sailors, marines, and airmen are confident that the great majority of the people have faith in them and will support them. They know too, that if the people back home work with the same willingness and zeal as do the service men, that the spirit of defeatism will be shifted to the Politburo where it belongs.

The people should know that our battle-tested veterans in Korea are the finest in the world today, and that their leaders are unsurpassed in skill and bravery. They should recall that America has by far the greatest industrial capacity in the world. Far from being weaklings we are incomparably the strongest nation in the world and both our friends and our enemies should know it. Every American should scoff at the defeatism that seems to have become a minor vogue. The same individuals who predicted we would be thrown into the sea in the first weeks of the Korean conflict are again forecasting dire disaster. They were wrong before and they are still wrong.

Honor Service Chaplains. The calm bravery and devotion to their fellow man as displayed by four chaplains who went down with the torpedoed troopship Dorchester eight years ago again centered national attention last week end on the splendid work of the chaplains of the Army, Navy, and Air Force. In Philadelphia on Saturday, President Truman helped dedicate an interdenominational Chapel of the Four Chaplains as a memorial to the brave men who gave their life belts to save others. In New York City Sunday, the Chaplain Alexander D. Goode Lodge of B'nai B'rith (named for one of the heroic chaplains) presented gold medals and $500 awards to the three chiefs of chaplains in behalf of three chaplains selected as exemplifying "the devotion and sacrifice to interfaith good will" shown by the four chaplains of the Dorchester. It is a fine thing that the various faiths should honor the memory of these selfless men. Their actions should serve also to call attention to the great work being done day in and day out by chaplains in the combat zones in the Far East as well as other stations throughout the world and at home. Every effort should be made to help them in their good work. In this connection one recalls the report made by the President's Committee on Religion and Welfare in the Armed Forces, under the chairmanship of Mr. Frank L. Well. One of the principal recommendations of that group was that the various denominations be encouraged to accept greater responsibility for recruiting, endorsing, and evaluating chaplains for the Services and that they maintain close liaison with the chaplains in the field and try to promote their work; that they institute courses on the chaplaincy in their seminaries; and that they give chaplains important positions within the denomination in recognition of the key importance of the chaplain's mission. The chaplains have a difficult task and need and deserve such encouragement and helpful recognition.

Loss of Flag Officers

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Your editorial, "Loss of Flag Officers" in the 27 Jan. issue of your admirable publication caught my eye and for once I find myself taking issue with you.

A review of the current ages of flag officers reveals that the great majority are in their early fifties and that unless such a proviso as the one you lament is invoked we will wind up with what could be aptly named a "Rear Admirals Forever" club.

I respectfully challenge your statement that: "In June some of the Service's outstanding experts in highly specialized and important positions are due to be sacrificed by this method of forcing faster promotions." I challenge the statement because I have faith in the integrity of the members of the selection board, (names to the selector unknown), convened for the express purpose of selecting for retention those flag officers best qualified to run the Navy. May I also point out that ten captains with youth and a fresh point of view are eligible for selection as replacements for each flag officer not retained. And that the morale of the relatively few senior officers who discreetly "request retirement" is peanuts compared to that of hundreds of junior officers who are living in genteel poverty where a promotion will barely offset the atomic spiral of inflated living costs?

In front of me, alongside your editorial, I have an article on the Chrysler Corporation (page 94, Time, 29 Jan). Eight executives, (long time experts in highly specialized and important positions) are retiring. Is Chrysler's President Colbert, age 45, worried?

"Says Colbert: 'Don't worry. We'll have plenty of able replacements.'"

This from the head of a corporation facing production and expansion problems as vital to it as are those facing the Navy!

Personally, as a taxpayer and therefore, a stockholder in my Navy, I'll buy the Chrysler point of view as that most conducive to progress, efficiency and morale.

Commander, U. S. Navy

Competitive Tour Officers

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

With all the recent discussion of the temporary promotion system used by the Army, may I register a "gripe" on behalf of a group which I feel has certainly received an unfair deal as another. I refer to those officers receiving regular commissions through a competitive tour.

In the first place, these officers were "penalized" by loss of all commissioned service, no matter how superior it may have been, prior to 31 Dec., 1947, when determining permanent rank. In other words, their basic date of commission is 1 Jan., 1948, even though they may have three years (as in my case) or more excellent service prior to that date.

I am sure none of us would have complained if the temporary promotion system had not further "penalized" us for accepting a regular commission. Not only are we "passed over" by those with equal service and experience who were integrated in 1946 and 1947, but also by those with a later temporary date of rank—including many who failed to qualify on both integration and competitive tour.

1st Lt., Inf.

Service Humor

Noisy Possibilities

A chic femme was watching drill one day. Suddenly a rifle volley rang out. With a little scream the young lady shrank back directly into the arms of a private behind her.

"Oh," she stammered, with a blush. "I was so frightened by the rifles. Won't you please forgive me?"

"Not at all, not at all," spoke up the GI. "Let's go over and watch the artillery."

In The Journal

One Year Ago

Vice Admiral S. Low became Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Logistics at ceremonies attended by high-ranking Navy Department officials in his offices at the Pentagon on 8 Feb.

10 Years Ago

Admiral Ernest J. King, USN, has been assigned as commander of the newly-designated Atlantic Fleet.

25 Years Ago

The questions immediately confronting the Committee on Military Affairs of the House of Representatives are two in number: First, are the efforts of the War Department in preparing plans for the National Defense sufficiently coordinated with the efforts of the Navy Department and other departments of the Government concerned. The other question is the one of organization within the War Department itself. Should the Air Service be taken away from it entirely; or should it be left alone as it is now, one of the combatant arms of the Army?

50 Years Ago

"I wish to express on behalf of H. M. Navy our deep gratitude for the numerous expressions of sympathy and regret that I have received from the officers of the U. S. Army and Navy on the death of Her Majesty the Queen. These expressions are another proof of the bond which united our Services all over the world." (Signed by the British Naval Attache.)

85 Years Ago

Light breaks through the clouds enveloping the Mexican question at last, and from the precise quarter whence, by reflective observers, it was expected. The freight steamship Palestine brings from Europe the pleasant tidings that Napoleon has announced that arrangements are making to withdraw the French troops from Mexico, and that it is hoped that this course will pacify the people of the United States.

ARMA ANALOGUE COMPUTER

The Analogue Computer has long held a high place in Arma's work in such specialized fields as automatic gun-laying and torpedo-data computing for the U.S. Navy. Its present wider application to the needs of the other Services stems largely from accelerated post-war engineering at Arma, which resulted in miniaturizing its components and at the same time making them interchangeable and more accurate.

By this Arma development, the Analogue Computer has reached a new level of importance as a contributing factor in the high accuracy of American arms. It is typical of many things developed by Arma engineers to aid in making America safe against those who wish to destroy it.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—In the latest Russian note in the exchange of correspondence with the western democracies relative to a four-power conference on Germany, the Soviet Union does not quite close the door to further negotiations, but is as vague and evasive as the usual Red diplomatic missives. The apparent conditions laid down by the note are likely to prove quite unacceptable, though they may lead to requests for further clarification.

A conference on the unification of Germany was requested several weeks ago by Russia in a communication to the United States, Great Britain and France. In reply the western powers agreed, providing that all other points of difference were likewise discussed. In subsequent correspondence, Russia accused the western allies of planning to rearm western Germany in flagrant violation of prior commitments, specifically the Potsdam agreement.

After calling attention to the Russian rearmament of East Germany, the western powers suggested a preliminary meeting of deputies to prepare the agenda, which would include other matters in addition to the German question. This might leave the way open to consider the Austrian peace treaty, the future of Trieste, a Japanese peace treaty, and Communist aggression in the Far East. To this Russia appears to half agree, with conditions, insisting that German rearmament be given first priority, but failing to define other subjects to be considered.

The note reiterates caustically the oft-repeated accusation that the western powers are already rearming Germany. This question, the Soviet foreign ministry insists, must be decided first, after which the Soviet Union considers as possible consideration of other matters, "in composition and manner as provided for by the Potsdam agreement." The western powers are not likely to be enthusiastic about such an arrangement, nor would they like to be bound literally by the Potsdam agreement, which Russia appears to invoke or ignore, depending on the circumstances.

The consensus of opinion appears to be that any conference, either of principals or deputies, that might be held would accomplish little, save to give the Russians another forum for broadcasting more propaganda attacks on the non-Communist world. Obviously the Soviet Union is disturbed by the progress of the collective security arrangements of the Atlantic Pact countries, and is seeking every opportunity to attempt to split the alliance.

At Lake Success this week Russia again sought vainly to have the United Nations brand the United States as an aggressor for sealing off Formosa from the Korean conflict and for numerous alleged violations of the Manchurian frontier during military operations in Korea. Only the five members of the Soviet bloc voted for the Russian resolution. The charges and been previously rejected by the Security Council, but came before the Political Committee of the General Assembly at Russia's insistence. In a cable to the United Nations, Premier Chou En-lai of Red China demanded that a speech left behind by the Chinese Communist representative, General Wu Hsiu-chuan, be read to the committee. Since General Wu had given the speech to the press prior to leaving for China the committee merely made copies available to the members.

Assembly President Nasrollah Entezam of Iran, chairman of the Good Offices Committee, has appointed Sven Grafstrom of Sweden to succeed Indian Delegate Sir Benegal Rau on the committee, and hopes to persuade some delegate to succeed Foreign Minister Lester B. Pearson who has declined to continue as a member. The committee has the difficult, if not impossible, task of trying to induce Red China to enter into an agreement to end hostilities in Korea.

American ambassadors and ministers to European countries, including those behind the Iron Curtain, met in Frankfurt, Germany, this week to discuss matters pertaining to the conduct of American foreign affairs at the capitals to which they are accredited. They are represented as being unanimously of the opinion that Russia will not start a general war in 1951.

Reports from Prague indicate that Czechoslovakia is about to experience one of those periodical purges so characteristic of Communist countries. Former Foreign Minister Vladimir Clementis is reported to have fled Czechoslovakia and to have escaped into Western Germany. President Clement Gottwald is said to be under constant surveillance of the police. Apparently some erstwhile favorites of the Kremlin are under suspicion of having deviated from the party line laid down by Moscow.

Canadian Defense Minister Brooks Claxton this week announced a three-year $5 billion rearmament program for Canada. The principal expansion will be in the air force, which is to have 40 squadrons equipped with 3,000 planes. Eleven of the squadrons, with 800 jet planes, will be assigned to Europe.

The entire program is by far the greatest Canada has ever undertaken in peacetime and its cost will be one-fourth of the amount expended by the dominion in World War II. The Canadian Navy will be expanded from 30 to 100 warships, and its present personnel of 10,000 will be doubled. About one-quarter of the joint Canadian-American air warning radar screen will be constructed by Canada.

Canadian ground troops will be completely re-equipped with American armament, replacing British equipment, which will be made available to other Atlantic Pact countries. A combat division, at full war strength of 18,000 men, will be maintained in Canada, and a brigade or combat team of 5,000 or 6,000 troops will be sent to Europe. New units, mostly anti-aircraft artillery, will be organized.

Ships of the Fleet—Launched on 12 May 1945 and decommissioned in July 1949, the carrier USS Tarawa, CV40, was recommissioned 3 Feb. at the New York Naval Shipyard, with Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Francis P. Matthews as guests of honor. Capt. John H. Griffin, USN, former Chief of Staff and Aide on the Staff of the Commander Operational Development Force, Atlantic Fleet, will be commanding officer and Comdr. Charles E. Robertson, USN, former Chief of Staff at Jacksonville, Fla., will be executive officer. The Tarawa was the 185th ship of the Atlantic Reserve Fleet to reenter active service.

The carrier USS Philippine Sea late last month had compiled a record of 160 days at sea of the total 207 days she had been away from her home port of San Diego, Calif., during which time pilots had made more than 8,500 flights for a distance of over 4,500,000 miles as the vessel steamed more than 65,000 miles in carrying out her missions.

Admiral Arthur D. Radford, USN, Commander in Chief of the Pacific Fleet and Vice Admiral C. Turner Joy, USN, Commander Naval Forces Far East, recently met Naval representatives of eight nations aboard the USS Dixie, flagship of Commander Task Force 95. Among those present were: Rear Adm. Allan E. Smith, USN, Commander United Nations Blockading and Escort Force; Vice Adm. William G. Andrewes, British Royal Navy; Capt. Nai Nopakun, Thailand Navy; Comdr. R. P. Welland, Royal Canadian Navy; Comdr. W. B. M. Marks, Royal Australian Navy; Lt. Comdr. G. P. D. Hall, Royal New Zealand Navy; Lt. Comdr. D. J. Van Doorninck, Royal Netherlands Navy, and Capt. Paid Lin Ki, Republic of Korea Navy. After reviewing the accomplishments of the Blockading and Escort Force, Admiral Radford said: "The performance of the United Nations Naval forces has been exemplary. Despite the barrier of languages, you have worked together as a well coordinated fighting organization. You have performed your missions in the face of ever constant danger from mine fields—mine fields that were among the thickest and most hazardous in the records of naval warfare. When the history books of tomorrow are written, I know that the world's first United Nations naval activity will receive a well deserved well done."

The carrier USS Leyte and the amphibious control vessel USPEC 896 have returned to San Diego, Calif., from the Korean war zone. Just prior to the Leyte's departure for the U. S., Ens. Walter N. DeLoach, USN, recorded the 30,000th landing on the carrier's flight deck.

After unloading her cargo of 44 fighter planes and other military equipment at Saigon, Indo-China, the carrier USS Windham Bay has departed for the United States.

The 45,000-ton battleship USS New Jersey sailed from Norfolk, Va., on 6 Feb., but Naval officials declined to reveal her destination. The ship had been taken from mothballs at Bayonne, N. J. A sister ship, the USS Wisconsin is being reconditioned at the Norfolk Navy Yard, to join the New Jersey and the USS Missouri as the active battleships of the fleet.

General Eisenhower at Columbia—General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, USA, Supreme Commander of Allied Powers Europe, was at Columbia University this week, where he attended a meeting of the trustees and finished other university business. He is expected to return to Washington, D. C., next week before returning to Europe. General Eisenhower is on indefinite leave as president of Columbia.

Navy Reinstates Combat Promotions—The first Navy battlefield promotions since World War II have been awarded to three enlisted hospital corpsmen in Korea. Promoted were Jeffrey L. Cogborn to second class, Norman R. Jackvony to second class, and David A. Howard to dental technician first class. The promotions were on a "temporary" basis.

Korean Overseas Service Bars—Coincidental with the presentation of the first Korean Service Ribbons, it was disclosed this week that the Army has authorized wearing of overseas service bars to indicate duty in Korea from 27 June 1950 until a date to be announced at a later time.

Individuals will be entitled to wear one bar for each six months of such service completed. Service in World War II, of periods of less than six months duration which otherwise meets the requirements for the award of Overseas Bars may be added to periods of service performed in Korea between the above mentioned dates to determine the total number of overseas bars authorized, the Army reported.

Army Battlefield Promotions—For outstanding battlefield service in Korea, a total of 1,214 Army officers had received promotions to the ranks of first lieutenant through colonel, as of 23 Jan., an Army study showed this week. Of this number, 8 were advanced to colonel (upon approval by the Department of the Army), 57 were promoted to lieutenant colonel, 183 to major, 306 to captain and 660 to first lieutenant.

Ordnance Corps—Thomas A. Conlon, 60, of 11170 Old Bladensburg Road, Silver Spring, Md., was honored 2 Feb. by the members of the Office, Chief of Ordnance, at a reception at Fort Myer, Va. Mr. Conlon, retiring as Deputy Chief of the Artillery Branch, was presented with a scroll by Maj. Gen. E. L. Ford, USA, Chief of Ordnance, which lauded his achievements during his 39 years of service to the Ordnance Corps.

Military Developments Abroad—Following a three-day demonstration at Baumholder, Germany, the Standing Group of the Atlantic Pact disclosed late last week that approval has been granted for mass production of three French military pieces of equipment—a featherweight bazooka, 13-ton tank chaser and a speedy reconnaissance car. Also, it was reported that a 50-ton French tank, armed with a 100mm. cannon, which was tested, would be sent to the Army's Aberdeen, Md., Proving Ground for evaluation by American ordnance experts.

The French tank chaser has a 45-mile speed and is armed with a 75mm. gun. The reconnaissance car has eight wheels, with pneumatic tires on the pairs of wheels at the front and back. The inner-four wheels are for extra traction when necessary and are raised for high travel on highways. It is reported that the car is capable of 60 mile an hour speeds forward or in reverse.

Canada—Defence Minister Brooke Claxton has announced a major change in top level organization of the armed services of Canada. Lt. Gen. Charles Foulkes is appointed full time Chairman of the Chiefs of Staff Committee and relinquishes his appointment as Chief of the General Staff of the Canadian Army. General Foulkes has been Chairman of the Chiefs of Staff Committee, as well as Chief of the General Staff, during the last five years. General Foulkes will be replaced as Chief of the General Staff by Lt. Gen. Guy Simonds, present head of the National Defence College. General Simonds in turn will be replaced as head of the National Defence College by Air Vice Marshal F. R. Miller, at present Air Member for Operations and Training at National Defence Headquarters. Mr. Claxton said that the reason for making the change was the increase in defence activities, particularly those having to do with co-operation with other countries under the North Atlantic Treaty which was requiring more and more of General Foulkes' time. In addition, the work of preparing fully correlated defence plans and ensuring the utmost co-ordination and co-operation between the Services now required the services of a chairman not an integral part of one of the forces nor particularly responsible for its administration.

Norway—Cities with more than 12,000 persons have been ordered to provide air-raid shelters for 20 per cent of their population and in Oslo bomb shelters are to be built for 60,000 persons.

French Morocco—Five additional air bases will be placed at the disposal of the U. S. Air Force, the airdromes to remain under French command and to be used jointly by both French and U. S. planes. The bases are at Casablanca, Rabat-Sale, Meknes, Marrakech and Port Lyautey.

Luxembourg—Arrangements have been completed for the delivery from Canada of 24 25-pounder guns to arm a field regiment. The action was taken one day after General Eisenhower requested that the equipment be sent.

Great Britain—The Fairey 17, new carrier-borne aircraft especially designed for a most important role in the defence plan—that of combating submarines—is to go into quantity production for the Royal Navy. This search and strike aircraft has an Armstrong Siddeley Double Mamba turboprop engine of 2,950 horsepower which gives it the advantage of twin-engined performance though only a single-engined machine. The Fairey 17 was the first turboprop plane to land on an aircraft carrier at sea. It made its first flight on September, 1949 and has already carried out extensive trials aboard HMS Illustrious. Security restrictions only permit an external description of the aircraft. It has a deep fuselage and doors for a large bomb-bay for carrying torpedoes or depth charges, mines or bombs. Sono-buoys and other war equipment can be carried beneath the wings. Behind the bomb-bay is a retractable radar "dustbin" which is lowered on operations but can be retracted back into the fuselage during normal non-operational cruising flights. The crew sit high above the Double Mamba engine with all-round visibility. The engine exhaust gas exits are on both sides of the fuselage astern of the trailing edges of the wings. The aircraft has a tricycle undercarriage and folding wings to enable it to be stowed in the hangars below the deck of the carrier. It has equipment so that it can be launched off a deck by catapult if necessary.

Rotate Troops from Korea—The Army is giving consideration to a combat rotation policy to permit the return of veteran troops in Korea when manpower requirements permit. This is revealed by Senator Francis Case (R-S. D.), who says that when the Army is able to do so the plan "will be energetically carried out." The Senator asked about this matter when he learned that a constituent's brother had been in action since 3 July. He said he was informed that "The Army recognizes the need for combat rotation and is studying the various methods of implementation in order to determine the most satisfactory means within present capabilities."

Post for Admiral Fechteler—There were reports this week that Admiral William M. Fechteler, USN, Atlantic Fleet commander, would be named to head the proposed unified sea force of the North Atlantic Treaty nations.

In this regard, it is believed that the experience gained during recent months by the United Nations' fleet in Korea will prove invaluable. Ships of many nations having been serving in the Far East under Vice Adm. Charles T. Joy, USN.

Poker Pilots—At a jet fighter base in Korea there is the making of a royal poker hand. Lt. Col. Ben R. King, Capt. Nat D. King, 1st Lt. Joe R. King and Capt. Thomas Queen recently welcomed a new flyer to the 409th Fighter-Bomber Group—2d Lt. Laurel E. Prince.

New Division to Europe—Press reports told this week of the probability that the Army's 4th Infantry Division, Ft. Benning, Ga., likely will be sent to Europe following conclusion of Congressional debate on a resolution to send more troops to serve under General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, USA, Supreme Commander Allied Powers Europe. There was also some speculation that a National Guard division also would be sent to Europe. It is recalled that four National Guard divisions were ordered into active military service in September and presumably are nearing readiness for possible overseas assignment.

Named SHAPE PIO—Brig. Gen. Charles T. Lanham, USA, has reported for duty as Chief of Public Information at General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower's Supreme Headquarters Atlantic Powers Europe. General Lanham was formerly Chief of the Military Assistance Advisory Group in Brussels, Belgium, a post to which he was assigned in February 1950 following Pentagon duty as Director of the Staff of the Personnel Policy Board in the Office of the Secretary of Defense. An officer with a distinguished World War II combat record, General Lanham also has had considerable experience in public relations matters, including postwar duty as Chief of the Troop Information and Education Division of the General Staff, and assignment as Special Assistant to General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, USA, then Chief of Staff.

"A Soldier's Story"—The autobiographical account of General Omar N. Bradley's experiences from North Africa to V-E Day will be told in "A Soldier's Story," scheduled for publication during April in Life magazine and for book-form release by Henry Holt & Co. on 6 June—the seventh anniversary of D-Day in Normandy. In a joint statement, Publisher Andrew Heiskell of Life and President Edgar T. Rigg of Henry Holt & Co., expressed the belief that this "is one of the most dramatic books about World War II."

The narrative recapitulates General Bradley's service as Commanding General of II Corps in the North Tunisian campaign and in the Sicily invasion. Subsequently, General Bradley commanded the First U. S. Army for the D-Day landings in Europe and later was given command of the 12th Army Group in Europe for the liberation of France and the assault on Germany.

Military Chaplains Honored—Three chaplains of the Armed Forces—one of them missing in action in Korea since last 16 July—were awarded the B'nai-Brith Award of Interfaith Goodwill. Presented at a dinner 4 Feb. in New York City, where Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews was principal speaker, were gold medals and $500 awards to Chaplain (Capt.) Herman G. Felhoelter, USA, who is missing in Korea; Comdr. Robert M. Schywhart, ChC, USN; and Chaplain (Maj.) Merritt O. Slawson, USAF. Accepting the awards were Chaplain (Maj. Gen.) Roy H. Parker, USA, Rear Adm. Stanton V. Salisbury, ChC, USN, and Chaplain (Maj. Gen.) Charles I. Carpenter, USAF, chiefs of chaplains of the Army, Navy and Air Force respectively.

The inter-faith awards were made by the Alexander D. Goode Lodge of B'nai Brith as a remembrance to the heroic chaplains who gave their lives when the troopship Dorchester was sunk by German submarines off Greenland on 3 Feb.

Military Chaplains

1943. The four men who met death together were Chaplains Clark Poling and George L. Fox, Protestant ministers; John P. Washington, a Catholic priest, and Alexander D. Goode, a rabbi.

Recognition for Combat Troops—As part of his ambition to gain greater recognition for Army combat troops, Secretary Frank Pace, jr., has revealed his hope that consideration may be given to adoption of a special uniform for wear by troops who have been in combat. He emphasized, however, that nothing "is in the works" as yet, but said thought should be given to a distinctive uniform to identify combat veterans. Mr. Pace's remarks were made in an informal address before the Touch-down Club of Washington, D. C., in which he praised the service of Army troops in Korea. It is known that the Secretary, in keeping with his aim to win new recognition for the contributions to national security being made by ground force troops, was one of the leading factors in the preparation of the combat pay bill now before Congress.

Cavalryman Gets Kiddie Car—His division some time ago lost its horses, but Maj. Kenneth R. Eckert of the 1st Cavalry in Korea has received a replacement—a shiny new kiddie-car. Last November, studying a mail order catalog to find an appropriate Christmas gift for his two-year-old daughter, the major saw two advertisements which hit his fancy. One was for a fruitcake, which he ordered for himself; the other, for the kiddie car, was ordered for little Cheryl Eckert, at home with her mother at 116 N. Howes Avenue, Ft. Collins, Colo. The mails went amiss; Cheryl got the cake and the major became a re-mounted cavalryman.

Korean Ribbons Presented

The red tape which has been holding up award of the Korean Service Ribbon was snipped this week as Secretary of the Army Frank Pace, jr., and General J. Lawton Collins, USA, Chief of Staff, went to Walter Reed General Hospital on 6 Feb. to present the first ribbons to a first lieutenant and two enlisted men, representing the Armor, Artillery and Infantry branches.

The Korean Service Ribbon is of United Nations blue with narrow vertical white stripes at either end and a broader vertical white stripe in the center.

It is known that the Services are speeding supplies of the ribbons to military hospitals in the United States and to the Far East Command.

Published below are pertinent details concerning those who will be authorized to wear the ribbon.

At Walter Reed, the ribbons were pinned on 1st Lt. Howard W. Cardoza, jr., a winner of the Distinguished Service Cross; PFC Francis Phillips, a Silver Star recipient; and M/Sgt. Andy Parth, also awarded the Silver Star for heroism in Korea.

Lieutenant Cardoza served with the 70th Tank Battalion attached to the 1st Cavalry Division; Private First Class Phillips was serving as a forward Artillery observer when wounded, and Sergeant Parth, a veteran of eight years' Army service, was a member of the 25th Infantry Division.

Secretary Pace said the awards represented service credit "for the military effort in Korea which is helping protect men's freedom everywhere from enslavement and tyranny."

General Collins said the records made by the recipients typified the coordinated teamwork being evidenced on Korean battlefields.

To meet requirements for the award, service must have been performed between 27 June 1950, and a terminal date to be announced later, under specified conditions, within the territorial limits of Korea or on waters adjacent thereto. Service must be performed on permanent assignment or on temporary duty for at least 30 consecutive days, or 60 days not consecutive.

Along with the ribbon, bronze stars may be awarded for each campaign, and a bronze arrowhead for participation in a parachute jump, glider landing or assault landing within the territorial limits of Korea.

The Army shortly will issue an amendment to AR 600-55, 22 Sept. 1948, to authorize wearing of the Korean Service Medal. The important points to be made in this amendment will be stated substantially as follows:

Description—The medal of bronze is 1 1/4 inches in diameter and will be suspended by a ring from a silk moiré ribbon 1 1/2 inches in length and 1 1/2 inches in width composed of a white stripe (1/32 inch), United Nations blue band (19/32 inch), white stripe (1/32 inch), United Nations blue band (19/32 inch) and white stripe (1/32 inch).

Requirements—

(1) Service between 27 June 1950, inclusive, and a terminal date to be announced later, under any of the following conditions:

(a) Within the territorial limits of Korea or on waters immediately adjacent thereto; or

(b) With a unit under the operational control of CINCFE, other than one within the territorial limits of Korea, which has been designated by the Commander-in-Chief, Far East, as having directly supported the military effort in Korea; or

(c) Was furnished an individual certificate by the Commander-in-Chief, Far East, testifying to material contribution made in direct support of the military effort in Korea.

(2) The service prescribed must have been performed:

(a) While on permanent assignment; or

(b) While on temporary duty for 30 consecutive days or 60 days not consecutive; or

(c) While in active combat against the enemy under conditions other than those prescribed in sub-paragraph (2) (a) and (b) immediately above, provided a combat decoration has been awarded or an individual certificate has been furnished by the commander of an independent force or of a division, ship, or air group, or comparable or higher unit, testifying to such combat service.

Service star:

Requirements.—Combat service within the area described in sub-paragraph b above, one bronze service star for each campaign (See AR 260-15). The individual must meet one of the following conditions:

(a) Assigned, or attached, to and present for duty with a unit during the period in which it participated in combat.

(b) Under orders in the combat zone and in addition meets any of the following requirements:

1. Awarded a combat decoration.

2. Furnished a certificate by a commanding general of a corps, higher units, or independent force that he actually participated in combat.

3. Served at a normal post of duty (as contrasted to occupying the status of an inspector, observer, or visitor).

4. Aboard a vessel other than in a passenger status and furnished a certificate by the home port commander of the vessel that he served in the combat zone.

(c) Was an evadee or escapee in the combat zone or recovered from a prisoner of war status in the combat zone during the time limitations of the campaign. Prisoners of war will not be accorded credit for the time spent in confinement or while otherwise in restraint under enemy control.

Arrowhead:

Requirements.—Participation in a combat parachute jump, combat glider landing, or amphibious assault landing within the territorial limits of Korea under either of the following conditions:

(a) Made a combat parachute jump or combat glider landing into enemy-held territory as an assigned or attached member of an organized force carrying out an assigned tactical mission.

(b) Went ashore in the assault waves of an amphibious landing on enemy-held territory as an assigned or attached member of an organized force carrying out an assigned tactical mission.

meetings and luncheons under her direction. She was presented with an inscribed wrist-watch by the Ladies of the 40th A.A.A. Brigade.

Colonel and Mrs. Handwerk's many friends may contact them now at the Medical Holding Detachment, Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco, Calif. Later the Handwerks will visit their daughter, Marjorie, who is Mrs. Beverly Duncan, Box 339, La Grange, Ohio.

He graduated from the Naval Academy in 1900, the Naval War College in 1917, and the Army War College in 1926.

While attending the Naval Academy, Admiral Berrien was a three-star letterman, having earned his letter in football, baseball and track. He played right-end on the Navy football squad during his first class year (1899).

Admiral Berrien has been a life long member of the Naval Academy Athletic Association and in the memory of the Athletic Association officials, Admiral Berrien had never missed an Army-Navy football game, with the exception of the past 1950 game.

During the 1910 season, not one of Navy's nine opponents scored; the only season since the Academy began football 68 years ago, that Navy's goal line was uncrossed.

During his 35 years of active service, Admiral Berrien had duty in every type of naval vessel. He commanded the U. S. Submarine Base, New London, Conn., from 1921 to 1923; organized and commanded the first Navy Unit at Yale University, 1923-25; commanded the aircraft carrier USS Lexington from 1928 to 1930 and served as Captain of the Yard, Washington Navy Yard, Washington, D. C., from 1930-34.

He retired from active duty with the rank of Rear Admiral in June 1935, but was recalled to duty in 1942 to serve as troop convoy commander between San Francisco and South Australia.

Admiral Berrien had service in both World Wars, in addition to the Philippine Campaign, the Boxer Rebellion, and the Mexican Campaign in 1914.

Admiral Berrien is the holder of the Navy Distinguished Service Medal, the Order of St. Michael and St. George from Great Britain, and the Order of Savior from Greece. He is survived by his widow, the former Mary Elizabeth Whitteley of 367 Prospect St., New Haven, Conn.; a son, Frank W. Berrien, and a daughter, Mrs. James Ross Gillie.

Navy Jet Interceptor

A new carrier-based jet fighter, designed specifically for high altitude interception, has passed its initial flight tests successfully.

While performance data was not disclosed, the Navy released pictures which showed that the new plane, designated the XF4D, is tailless and is actually a triangular shaped platform wing with a slim nose extending forward to provide a cockpit for the pilot.

The plane is designed to be catapulted from carrier decks and to climb rapidly to the upper atmosphere. The Navy said the XF4D fulfilled the need for a plane that can intercept an enemy on short notice.

First flight tests were conducted at the Edwards AFB, Muroc, Calif.

The XF4D was built by the Douglas Aircraft Corporation at its El Segundo, Calif., plant under the supervision of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics. The Navy's F3D Skynight, twin jet night fighter, the AD Skyraider, attack plane of Korean fame, and the A2D Skyhawk, turbo-prop carrier attack plane, are also in production at this plant.

F-84's to Europe

Deliveries have begun on an undisclosed number of F-84E Thunderjet fighter aircraft to North Atlantic Treaty Nations, as part of the Mutual Defense Assistance program. Republic Aviation Corporation, designers and builders of the F-84, announced this week that an initial shipment has been prepared and is now enroute from the Farmingdale plant to Europe.

Trailer Housing

Congress, now considering the defense housing bill, should definitely take steps to provide proper housing facilities near military bases and remote defense plants, but should avoid the construction of ghost shack towns. That statement was made last week before the Senate Banking and Currency committee by Mr. Earl Raymond, Saginaw, Michigan trailer coach manufacturer and representative of the Trailer Coach Manufacturers Association and the Trailer Coach Association (California).

Mr. Raymond asked the committee to consider amending the three billion dollar housing bill to provide for low down payments for mobile home purchases in defense or military occupations and monthly insured payments.

Mr. Raymond said that more than 90 per cent of last year's production of the industry, 60,000 mobile homes, are now used by workers and military families.

Steel Expansion

About $1.7 billion will be spent for expansion and improvement in the steel industry in 1950 and 1951, American Iron and Steel Institute announced on 6 Feb.

Iron and steel companies spent about $513,000,000 last year and plan to spend $1,200,000,000 a record high amount, this year, according to the Institute.

Army Fatigue Clothes

A new type cotton sateen cloth eventually will replace herringbone twill as the material for Army fatigue clothing.

Developed by collaboration between the Army Quartermaster Corps and the textile industry, the new fabric has been found, after extensive testing, to have much better wearing qualities than herringbone twill.

The Quartermaster Corps plans to purchase 15,000,000 yards of the sateen during the next several months. It will be manufactured into jackets and coats for use as work garments. However, the new fatigue clothing will not be issued to troops until present supplies of herringbone twill uniforms are exhausted.

The new sateen, which, like herringbone twill, will be 8.5-ounce weight to the square yard, was tested in laboratories, at the Quartermaster Corps combat course, Ft. Lee, Va., and by troops in the field. The so-called reverse side of the material was found to have the greatest resistance to abrasion with a wearing quality equal to nearly twice that of herringbone twill.

AF Machine Tools

The Air Force's theory of storing machine tools for use in an emergency is paying off now by saving 12 to 18 months from the time a contract is awarded until an airplane rolls off the assembly line.

Air Materiel Command at present is issuing machine tools from a 40,000 piece pool, collected after World War II from private contractors and stored since 1946 in two depots.

Col. C. W. Andrews, chief of Resources Planning Section in the Directorate of Procurement and Industrial Planning, said contractors now could go into production within three or four months because of the machine reserve, whereas if they had to wait for manufacture and delivery of new machine tools, there would be a lapse of almost two years between signing the contract and going into production.

Dehydrated Foods

The Army's general procurement of dehydrated foods for troop consumption, eliminated since the end of World War II, has been reinstated on a limited basis in the Zone of Interior and in all overseas commands.

The Army said the action was being taken for these reasons, as described in SR 30-275-5:

- (1) Provide school as well as on-the-job training in the preparation and service of dehydrated foods.
- (2) Establish acceptability of dehydrated foods on the part of consuming troops.
- (3) Provide a means of further research and development of established products as well as new products.
- (4) Provide industrial and technical experience essential to emergency expansion.
- (5) Permit maintenance of preferred operational project stocks.

Defense Production

The following are reports of progress in defense production involving contract awards and appointments of key personnel to speed manufacture for the Armed Forces.

Dravo Corporation—In Pittsburgh, the Dravo Corporation announced this week authorization to furnish 13 floating cranes for the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks, seven of the cranes to be of 100-ton capacity and the other six to be rated for 60-ton loads. Similar cranes were developed for the Army's Transportation Corps during World War II, one of which was towed across the Atlantic and put into operation at newly-captured Cherbourg 24 hours after its arrival.

Thor Corporation—Appointment of Vice President H. C. Buckingham as director of defense production was reported this week by the Thor Corporation.

General Motors Corporation—The Detroit Ordnance Automotive Tank Center has awarded a contract for $11,500,000 to the General Motors Corporation for its GMC Truck & Coach division to produce passenger coaches.

Curtiss-Wright Corporation—President Roy T. Hurley has announced licensing of three companies to build engines now produced by the Wright Aeronautical Corporation. The Kaiser-Frazer Corporation will build Wright Cyclone 7 engines; the Avco Manufacturing Corporation will make three models of the Cyclone 9 engine; and the Hudson Motor Car Company will produce Wright Cyclone 18 engines.

General Electric Co.—Receipt of a $1,300,000 Signal Corps contract for manufacture of portable radio-telephone equipment incorporating the best features of both radio and telephone for front line to rear area communications is announced.

American Woolen Co.—Award of a $4,034,080 contract for blue navy melton headed a list of new defense orders to manufacturers in the six-state New England region, where military contracts for more than $18,000,000 were let from 10 to 24 Jan. Since outbreak of the Korean war, the New England Council has recorded awards of 885 unclassified contracts worth $220,609,732.

Heavy Machinery Contract

The Caterpillar Tractor Company of Peoria, Ill., has won a $42,000,000 contract to build heavy machinery for the Army Corps of Engineers. This is the largest government order received by the company since 1942, according to Vice President Gail E. Spahn.

Army Vehicle Contract

The Army's Ordnance Tank-Automotive Center at Detroit has announced a $40,000,000 contract award to the Ford Motor Company for the production of engines and other components of combat vehicles to be manufactured at the Ford plant in Dearborn, Mich.

GM January Production

General Motors produced 280,772 passenger cars and trucks in the United States and Canada during January, as compared with 327,057 during December, 1950. Of the total vehicles produced by GM during January, 222,777 were passenger cars and 57,995 were trucks.

Aeroproducts Expands

100% expansion of the facilities of the Aeroproducts Division of General Motors Corporation was formally announced in Dayton this week by Mr. M. M. Monroe, General Manager of Aeroproducts.

"Requirements for the Aeroproducts plant expansion became necessary following Air Force negotiations for Aeroproducts A644FN-C1 propellers to be installed on the Fairchild C-119C aircraft, a super 'flying boxcar' capable of hauling 10 tons of cargo," Mr. Monroe said. "U. S. Navy requirements for production of our AD8664F-A1 and AD8664FN-B1 Turbine propellers for use on the Douglas A2D and Consolidated Vultee R3Y aircraft respectively has also been a factor in the expansion program," he added.

Located on the Dayton Municipal Airport, the present Aeroproducts plant was completed in 1942. The expansion program will double the present manufacturing area, affording a total of over 500,000 square feet of manufacturing, laboratory testing and office area.

Defense Fiscal Advisor

William Birrell Franke has been appointed a special assistant to The Secretary of Defense, General Marshall, to fill a newly established post as advisor and consultant in fiscal affairs.

Mr. Franke, senior partner of the public accounting firm of Franke, North, Hannon & Withey, New York City, and a director of several corporations, has taken leave from his business interests.

Mr. Franke was born in Troy, N. Y., in 1894. He was employed by Cluett, Peabody & Company, the General Electric Company, and various firms of certified public accountants before forming his own firm in 1929. In recent years, Mr. Franke has acted as a consultant to business firms. He is Chairman of the Board of the John Simmons Company and General Shale Products Corporation.

He is a member and a former Vice-President of the American Institute of Accountants and is a member of the New York State Society of Certified Public Accountants. ## Coast Guard Chapel

Following competitive bidding, James King and Son, Inc., of New York City, has been awarded a $468,700 contract for construction of the Coast Guard Memorial Chapel at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn. The project is scheduled for completion during 1951.

Ground-breaking ceremonies are to be held on 1 Mar. and the cornerstone will be laid during graduation week in June.

Reserve Training

The Comptroller General has ruled that Coast Guard appropriations made for training programs may be used only for the pay and allowances of personnel whose primary duty is in connection with the administration of the training program. The official digest of the decision, B-98483, follows:

"The limitation contained in the General Appropriation Act, 1951, on funds made available to the Coast Guard for expenses of Reserve training does not apply to the pay and allowances of all personnel who may be engaged on duty in connection with the overall Reserve program but only to the pay and allowances of those whose primary duty is in connection with the administration of the training program, and the question as to what personnel are assigned duties primarily in administering the Reserve training program is one for administrative determination by the Coast Guard."

Dependent Travel Slowed

The Department of Defense announced on 7 Feb. that it will continue to send dependents of military and civilian personnel to Germany, but said the shortage of housing in certain sections of Germany has made it necessary to slow down the movement of dependent families to that area.

On and after 15 Feb., no applications for concurrent travel of qualified personnel and their dependents to Germany will be approved. Those individuals whose applications are approved before 15 Feb. will be permitted to have their families accompany them.

The overseas movement of the families of personnel who are assigned to stations in Germany will be by a priority waiting list which will be established by the overseas commander. These families will receive overseas movement orders as soon as housing is available.

Last week's issue of THE JOURNAL reported a similar slow-down in the movement of dependents to Austria for the same reason—lack of housing.

These announcements came on the heels of the Army's decision to extend to four years the tour of duty in the European Command.

AF Leases Facilities

The Air Force and the Port of New York Authority have announced that arrangements are being made for the leasing by the Air Force of certain facilities of Port Newark and Newark Airport.

Assistant Secretary of the Air Force, Harold C. Stuart is negotiating with Austin J. Tobin, executive director of the Port of New York Authority, to obtain warehouse buildings 204, 205, and 206, and other properties of the Tidewater Terminal areas of Port Newark and a few acres of property of Newark Airport. Both areas are planned to be made available to the Air Force in the middle of March.

These facilities are required by the Air Force for processing and shipping vehicles, aircraft, and general cargo in connection with the Mutual Defense Assistance Program.

Navy Capt. at Cornell

A retired Navy captain with 26 years of service behind him is ready to begin a second career after completing a graduate course in business administration at Cornell University.

Capt. Robert R. DeWolfe, 48, USN-Ret., hopes to do administrative work in the aviation industry, where he feels his background of nearly 20 years in naval aviation would be useful. He entered the School of Business and Public Administration at Cornell in the fall of 1948 and completed the course for the master's degree last week.

Captain DeWolfe enlisted in the Navy in 1921, gained admission to Annapolis and was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1926. He was retired with captain's rank in January, 1947.

General Puller Decorated

Newly promoted Brig Gen. Lewis B. Puller, commanding officer of the First Marine Infantry regiment, has been awarded the Gold Star in lieu of a second Legion of Merit Medal. Presentation was made by Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Smith, First Marine Division commander.

The new general who was promoted 23 Jan. was lauded for his exceptional professional ability as a troop leader. "Though frequently receiving sudden orders for the movement and commitment of his regiment to action, he was able at all times through his skill, initiative and foresight to execute all missions assigned in an outstanding manner, and as a direct result, the enemy was decisively defeated on each occasion," the citation accompanying the award concluded.

Officers Transferred

Comdr. Thomas B. Payne, USN, former Executive Officer of the Aviation Department at the U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., has been transferred to duty as Commanding Officer of the Naval Air Reserve Unit at the Anacostia, D. C. Naval Air Station, and Comdr. Burl H. Bush, USN, Industrial Officer of the U. S. Naval Engineering Experiment Station, Annapolis, has been reassigned to the U. S. Naval Shipyard, Long Beach, Calif.

Transfer Reception Center

Transfer to Camp Kilmer, N.J., of the reception center now located at Fort Dix, N.J., by 1 April is announced by the Army. The transfer is necessary so that additional training facilities may be made available at Fort Dix for the 9th Infantry Division, a training unit now stationed at the installation.

Rehabilitation of Camp Kilmer at a cost of approximately $2,800,000 has been authorized.

MDW Colonels Retired

Colonels Lester A. Sprinkle, Chief of Staff, and Arthur P. Moore, Public Information Officer, whose combined military service totals nearly 70 years, were retired 31 Jan. following an informal ceremony in the office of Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Herren, USA, commander, Military District of Washington.

Enlisted Requirements

The Army has published SR 615-319-1 outlining procedures to be followed in effecting retirement of enlisted personnel for length of service.
